

Thinking about old age today

Without money problems and as healthy as possible, you want to enjoy retirement.

Looking at the U.S., retirement assets account for nearly 70 percent of the total value of U.S. bonds and stocks. There could be shifts here, because the so-called SECURE 2.0 Act is supposed to lead to improvements in retirement savings accounts. Various bills are still being wrestled with, but the goal is clear. Citizens in the U.S. are to save more for retirement. Why is this development significant? Because there could be new market inflows, to the tune of an estimated $181 billion annually. Stocks should then have the largest inflows. There are many interesting commodities if investors are looking for equity securities to diversify savings.

What should not be missing from the investment portfolio are gold companies. This is because they have the best store of value there is in the ground. Trillium Gold Mines - <https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=aD0FBuIQWxY> -, for example, would come into consideration here. Ontario is home to the company's Newman-Todd complex, the largest land package in and around the Red Lake mining district.

In addition to a sufficient asset cushion in old age, health is a top priority. In terms of nutrition, many people have already rethought or are taking a closer look, saving on meat consumption. As the world's population grows, so does meat consumption, and if the world's population does not increasingly switch to plant-based protein sources, it would take two Earths to produce the required amount of meat by 2035. The potential in the food sector is therefore huge, and companies are investing heavily in alternative products and also in sustainable production.

In the food sector, this includes preservation of products. This is the area in which EnWave - <https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=ilvbLN2QNGo> - is active. EnWave's patented vacuum microwave drying (Radiant Energy Vacuum (REV™) technology) in food, pharmaceutical and cannabis products is innovative. As a result, EnWave has already attracted more than 45 partners on five continents.
