

And the winner is...

Not only the most important awards of the film industry, the Oscars were awarded. Two mining CEOs were also honored for their achievements in 2022.

Winners of the Mining CEO Of the Year 2022 were two companies associated with the Lundin Family Trust. The award was presented at PDAC. The Lundin Group of Companies has been around for more than 50 years and consists of 11 separate public companies focused on the commodities sector. In most cases, the Lundin family is one of the largest shareholders. The background is once a copper-gold-silver project on the Chile-Argentina border. The second winner owns a high-grade gold mine in Ecuador that produces gold at very low operating costs.

There are also other exciting projects in Chile and Argentina as well as in Ecuador. There is Aurania Resources - <https://www.commodity-tv.com/play/aurania-resources-first-hole-drilled-at-tatasham-geophysical-surveys-to-follow/> - with its The Lost Cities project in the Andes Mountains in southeastern Ecuador. Gold and copper are present here. It combines historical records as well as state-of-the-art exploration techniques, and it could be the next world-class discovery in Ecuador. In fact, Dr. Keith Barron of Aurania Resources had just discovered the Fruta del Norte gold deposit in Ecuador, which led to the award. In Argentina, Chile and Bolivia there is the famous lithium triangle, significant for the growing lithium market. Extremely high-grade lithium salars will provide lithium.

Here, Alpha Lithium - <https://www.commodity-tv.com/play/alpha-lithium-is-building-a-pilot-plant-found-a-fresh-water-source-wants-to-expand-hombre-muerto/> - is developing the Tolillar and Hombre Muerto salars. The important infrastructure is in place, the projects are in the excellent lithium area and the company is financially well positioned. There should be success.
